

\dump

This command, which must not appear inside a group, dumps the contents of T_EX's memory to a format file (p. 'format+file'). By using virtex, a special "virgin" form of T_EX, you can then reload the format file at high speed and continue in the same state that T_EX was in at the time of the dump. \dump also ends the run. Since \dump can only be used in initex, not in production forms of T_EX, it is only useful to people who are installing T_EX.
