1

\filbreak

This command provides a kind of conditional page break. It tells TEX to break the page—but not if the text up to a later \filbreak also fits on the same page. By enclosing a paragraph in a pair of \filbreaks, you can ensure that TEX will keep a paragraph on a single page if it can. You should not use \filbreak within a paragraph, since it forces TEX into vertical mode and thus ends the paragraph. See page 'filbreak' for more advice on this subject.